

Vega Family: Woodcross

Brandy Vega is a cutting-edge entrepreneur, a skillful media guru, a loyal mother and spirited philanthropist. At age 17, she graduated high school six months early to join the United States Army as a broadcast journalist and public affairs specialist. She served tours in Kosovo and several other deployments with distinction. Her time in the Army gave her the opportunity to interview many United States senior officials including President George W. Bush.

Brandy is highly adventurous and has an optimistic, larger-than-life personality. As a single mother of 3 children, Brandy has learned the art of resiliency and grounded determination. She values time with her children and teaching them to be the good they want to see in the world. Her oldest daughter, Adia will graduate from Woods Cross High School class of 2020 and then moving to Texas for college. She wants to follow in her mother's footsteps and study media. Kyah is 13 and an amazing artist and animator. She's always creating characters and playing with her cat Carl. Her youngest son, Blaze was born addicted to meth, she fostered him and finally adopted him. Additionally, she selflessly carried and gave birth July 18th, 2018 as a surrogate for family who struggled with infertility. She also volunteers with Nobody Dies Alone and is a Spiritual Care Volunteer at the Intermountain Health Center.
